

Garden Company Press Release - January 2017

Molly Kumer, Landscape Architect

Landscape architect brings CAD knowhow to the Garden Company

The Garden Company, based in Hertfordshire, provides landscape design services nationally. This year, its design services will be enhanced by the appointment of Molly Kumer, who is moving to the UK from Slovenia to join the company and introduce CAD systems into its ways of working.

Managing Director James Scott MSGD commented: 'We are delighted that Molly will be joining us. We have relied throughout our 25 years as a business on hand-drawn design work and it has served us well as you can see from our track record in winning national awards! However, we are keen to have the best of both worlds – by combining our hand-drawn approach with CAD skills we will be able to share information more effectively and efficiently with our clients, work teams and suppliers which will be a great benefit'.

With a Master's Degree in Landscape Architecture and almost 10 years' experience in garden design, Molly is well-placed to take on her new role. Based until recently in the lovely city of Ljubljana in Slovenia, she has also worked on Tom Stuart-Smith's garden in Hertfordshire. This experience developed her love of English garden design and set her on the road to looking for a permanent position in the UK.
